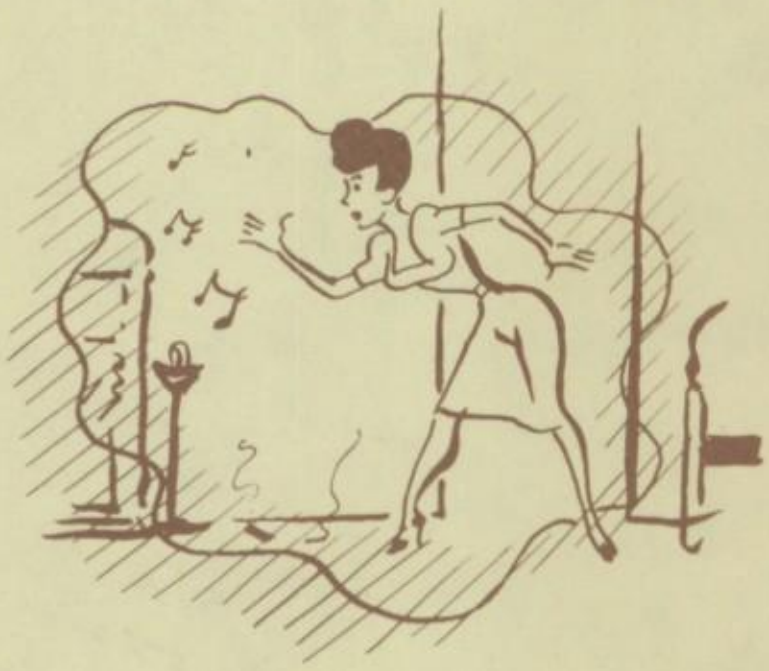
The Dell 1950

Norma Boulé



DEDICATION

To each and every Mother and Dad this yearbook is dedicated.

You have sacrificed many things and endured hardships of which we will never know so that we might have the opportunities an education brings. You have always worked for us. We will try to live up to and accede the standards you have shown us.

We have had classes and exams, proms and parties, our work and our play. We now have a skill that will never fail us.

We have friends whom we will never forget. You have made this possible.

Thank you, Mother and Dad, from the bottom of our hearts.

Dell School

"A true friend"

MRS. KATHLEEN DELL, PRESIDENT

A true friend of the Class of 1950, Mrs. Dell has helped us in many, many ways. Pleased when we are happy and sympathetic to our problems, she has always made us feel welcome in her office no matter what the mission.

The class wishes to thank her for her help and guidance during the last two years.

The Kathleen Dell Girl

The entire Senior class is happy that Beverly Beckman has been chosen the ideal Kathleen Dell student. She is indeed, ideal. Her scholarship is excellent, and she has been honored for this by membership in Kappa Delta Sigma.

As chairman of the House Committee, Bev has displayed clear understanding and sound judgment. She has earned the respect of her fellow students.

A sparkling personality, cooperative spirit, and grand humor combine to make her the logical choice for the Kathleen Dell Girl of 1950. Congratulations, Bev, from all of us.

In beauty and in charm
she may hold hands with any princess
in the world

DELL ITE

Published by the Kathleen Dell School

Volume IV — Brookline Massachusetts — June, 1950

Pictured above are the editorial and production staffs of the 1949-1950 Dellite, monthly publication of the Kathleen Dell School.

Production Staff Backbone of Paper

Forming the backbone of the 1949-1950 Dellite staff are the patient and hard working typists who make up the production staff. The difficult task of typing and justifying each article published in the Dellite required hours of laborous work. While not doing the actual writing, the production staff was directly responsible for the appearance of each issue. A job well done!

Senior Girls Are Department Heads

Heading the various departments, assistant editor Jerry Dill, feature editor Carson Barnes, and news editor Jan Hibbs are responsible for the news and feature articles appearing in the Dellite. These girls, with editor Dotty Robinson and Junior members of the journalism class, made several field trips during the year, among them jaunts to the Christian Science Monitor and the Boston Post, to study first hand the operation of a metropolitan daily.

Dotty Robinson Dellite Editor

Dorothy Robinson, editor-in-chief of the 1949-1950 Dellite is largely responsible for the success of the paper during this school year. Dotty, with her endless enthusiasm for this project, has given assignments and pasted dummys with the same cheerfulness; and for this the staff members wish to say, "Thank you Dotty".

Mrs Devlin is Dellite Aduisor

Deserving the most credit, but often receiving none, Mrs. Edna Devlin has successfully guided the 1949-1950 staff through the year. Her helpful suggestions and constructive criticisms have always been given with a smile, and the junior journalists would have been lost without her. Thank you Mrs. Devlin for helping make a difficult task a pleasant one.

Dellite Brings Top Reading -

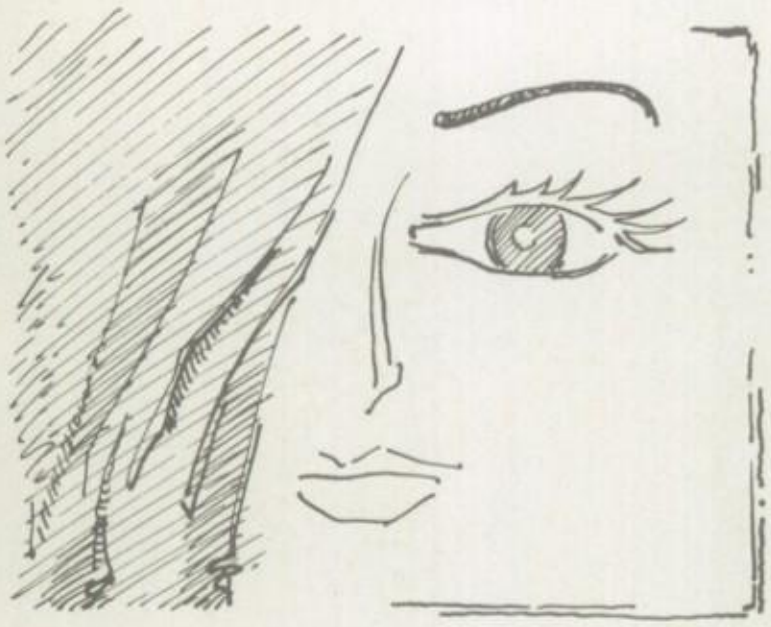
During the 1949-1950 term, many interesting people have been interviewed by members of the Dellite staff. Perhaps the most well-known among them is Bud Westmore, head make-up artist of Universal-International Studio in Hollywood. Interviewed at luncheon at the Hotel Statler, Mr. Westmore gave many interesting make-up hints which the Dellite passed on to its readers.

Joe Harrington, popular Boston columnist and writer of "All Sorts", was another of these who gave up his precious time to talk to a Dellite reporter.

After the Boston mayoralty contest, the Dellite was on the spot with questions put to the successful candidates family. Another was Lydia O'Leary, well known figure in the cosmetic world.

The Dellite was always on its toes to bring to the reader the best in news and features.

Class Will



Elaine MacWilliams wills those entrancing eyelashes to a needy broom of some sort.
Dotty Jaferian wills Thomas Shorthand to anyone flunking Gregg.
Nancy Gray gives Brown College back to its trustees.
Marilyn Davis wills herself to the Royal Typewriter Company as a speed demonstrationist.
Edie D'Amato wills M.I.T. to an interested Junior. Her interest graduates in June.
Rita Fortin wills her pep to a Junior who can keep up with her.
Florence Wagner gives her "headgear" to the Boston Park Department.
Bunny Anderson wills her automobile to any girl with lots of courage and extra padding.
June Talanian gives the Varsity Drag to a Junior with pep, vitality, and a bottle of vitamin pills.

Joan Casey wills her rosy cheeks to any undernourished Baldwin apple.
Troula Cupas begrudgingly wills her curly bangs to Jody Femino.
Bobbe Fitzgibbon leaves numerous dents in the Ford to her mother, who enjoys driving it once in a while when she gets the chance.
Pat Tavourlaris wills the 7:59 from Lowell to Ginny Etzel.
Dotty Robinson wills the Dellite to Mrs. Devlin with love, kisses, and relief.
Nancy Marks wills her jaunts to Nantucket to a Junior not subject to air sickness.
Florence Terzano gives her diamond to any old maid in the Senior Class.
Ann Garbarino wills her big, bright eyes to the Maybelline Company.
Carson Barnes leaves her journalistic ability to the Boston Traveler.
Barbara Barrett and Nan Kelley will themselves to the Toni Company, in case they run out of twins.

We will Aurelia Boyagis' disposition to a Junior as sweet as she is, if there is another.
Ginny Buckley gives her shorthand ability to four or five girls who can't get past sixty.
Nancy Hakanson wills her glasses to future telescopic research.
Beverly Holmes leaves her roommate. That's all.
Elaine Mosier wills future turkey raffles to next year's yearbook staff.
Kay Passias and Dotty Keats leave their passion for bridge to two girls without a passion for English.
Lyn Walton wills her job as Business Manager of the yearbook to a girl with facilities for printing up $1500.
Jane Smith leaves her name to any Junior with difficulty in pronouncing her own.
Marie Savarese wills herself to Billy Rose as a supertall showgirl.
Phyllis Mullin wills her ringlets to a passing French poodle.

Class Will

Sandy Hanson wills her drums to someone with a deaf family.
Jan Hibbs wills the crack between her two front teeth to anyone who loves the wide open spaces.
Marie Leggiero leaves that look to a crooning torch singer.
Patte Luther finally gives herself up to Superman, who for years has been hunting the notorious world criminal, Luther.
Natalie MacPherson wills her athletic enthusiasm to a Junior supplied with lots of vitamin pills.
Marjorie Moore wills the University of Maine to a gal with a fondness for football — captains.
Judy Parlove leaves her hair to a shaggy shaggy dog wishing to win a blue ribbon or so.
Sylvia Schribman wills her vocabulary to Webster.
Belle Gilmore and Shirley Friberg will future Sweetheart Balls to a gal with lots of money to make up deficits.
Betty Grant leaves her early morning punctuality to Marilyn Hiscoe, who's usually late too.

Geraldine Dill wills her knowledge to any girl who can afford the annual Mickey Mouse Encyclopedia Brittanica.
Janet Cox and Jane Frisbee will two double kicks to anyone who can execute the same.
Isabelle Conway gives a passion for typing and one beloved Royal back to the girl who willed them to her last year.
Connie Conley gives John Wayne back to Hollywood.
Dolores Chestaro wills future variety shows to someone whose father owns an aspirin factory.
Joan Chambers wills her position on the Dell art staff to a Junior with patience and fortitude.
Norma Boule and Terry Walsh will their gavels to any two girls who like to be bothered by Seniors.
Evelyn Jefferson leaves the school to all those without husbands.
Bev Beckman leaves her piano playing ability to any girl with fourteen or fifteen fingers.

Marie Sullivan leaves her wardrobe to be divided equally among four or five Juniors.
Gloria Raynes and Marylynn Sullivan will their places in the Dell chorus line to Kathy Flannery and Joan Diener.
Carolyn Pike gives Rochester, New Hampshire back to the Indians.
Phyllis Moran wills her 200 words per minute diamond Gregg award to anyone collecting petty jewelry.
Ruth Moore wills the Dell orchestra to Mr. Siegel.
Barbara Peirce gives the Old Colony back to the New Haven Railroad, who really doesn't want it either.
Dickie Tournas wills her first name of Aphrodite to anyone who can live up to it, as she does.
Jani Austin and Joanie Gillis will their boyfriends to anyone frequenting the Old Howard.
Deawn Young wills her name at the end of the alphabet to anyone who enjoys the end of a long long line.
And the class of 1950 just leaves — at last.

Prophesy

The glittering signs cast a rosy hue over the bustling crowds in the theater district just before curtain time. Gay, exciting, opening night in Boston. People came to see and be seen, and from behind my post at the lobby pop corn stand I could see all.

My first glimpse of what was to come was at the theater when I applied for this job. While the manager was pondering whether or not a Dell diploma qualified me as a corn popper, he suddenly remembered that his wife, the former Rose Marie Biagi, attended that magnanamous institution of learning. Remembering also that his former popper, Mary McCarthy had succeeded as such, I was hired.

First past my stand this opening night was Dotty Keats, successor to Ely Culberson, and her partner, Kay Passias.

Joining them in their balcony seats were Barbara Stevenson, who is writing sequals to the poems of her great uncle Robert Lewis, and Florence Wagner, world famous coiffeur. Marilyn Davis, taking time off from her nightly stint at the Opera House, rushed by to her aisle seat next to Joanie Gillis, wife of the famous Boston surgeon who only recently corrected the faulty vertabrae of Sally Keith.

Now my corn was really selling. Helen Hatzis, U. S. ambassador to Greece, and Helen Malcolm, lady minister to Afganistan, said it was the best they'd had in years. The voice of usher Mim Flynn, paging Bobbe Ann Fitzgibbon, broke the lobby serenity. It seems that lady cop Joan Simpson had a ticket for Bobbe, president of the U-Drive-It Corporation, who had parked her Ford in front of a hydrant. Accompanying Bobbe was Jane Smith, president of the Royal Typewriter Company, and Beverly Prodany, mother of seven. This case would, no doubt, be heard by Gloria Sawyer, Boston traffic judge, who during the housing shortage shared a swan boat with Jerry Dill, Pickle magnet.

Suddenly all eyes turned to the door. Preceeded by twelve ladies-in-waiting, dripping with jewels, and looking just as the wife of Indian Prince Kaly Ahn should look, Terry Walsh entered the lobby. In startling contrast was Connie Conley, commercial artist, who had forgotten to take off her painter's smock. Covering the opening for her paper, Dottie Robinson was accompanied by her photographer Sylvia Schribman, who picks up pin money on the side by riding her motorcycle across a tight rope in Boston Garden.

Dolores Chestaro, producer of this opening play was spotted at the lobby water cooler and was promptly beseiged by autograph hounds Gini Murray and Lucy Yirikian, who have set themselves up in business as public stenographers on the Boston Common. Rita Fortin and her husband, Mr. Rexall, stopped for a chat before taking their seats. Joining them were Carolyn Pike, husband Summit and family of little foothills. Nancy Gray drifted by, glowing with a Bermuda tan. Intimates say she has just purchased a popular surf club there.

An undercurrent of conversation accompanied Theresa Raso and Nancy Samaras into the lobby. Rumor has it that they run a bookie joint in Belmont, although District Attorney Marcia Vannah has no case against them. Hired to defend them, just in case, is Dorothy Hayes, of the law firm of Hayes, Hayes, Haynes, Hobbs, and Holden. Assisting the State is the firm of Bevalacqua, Cannarrozzo, Chalapatis, Contompasis, Guattaduro and Jones.

Steering clear of these two underworld first nighters was Jane Kelley, of the Kelley and Kenney Gambling Casino. The books of this establishment were in such condition that accounting whiz Janet Ritcey had to be hired to take charge before State Tax Commissioner Jean Snell pressed tax evasion charges.

Curtain time! Call girl Shirley Loud was giving the last warnings, and curtain puller Norma Boule, charging union rates, was awaiting her cue. Just as famed aviatrix Nancy Marks slipped into her seat, house manager Emily Maniatis closed the doors and the show was on. While strains of the overture filled the deserted lobby, I glanced at the program which Mary Auditore thoughtfully left for me.

My, what a lovely cover design from the art firm of Wallace and Chambers. The program put me in mind of that of another show, lo, these many years ago. Edna Lundstrom, winner of a recent Metropolitan audition, was to head the cast of talented performers. Cox and Frisbee, world famous dancing team were also to share the spotlight, but an item in Rosemary Sheehy's gossip column in that days Barnes Bugle said they were to be replaced by Jani Austin and Lynn Walton, the Park Avenue Hobos. The program said that Beckman Pianos were being used exclusively and also promised a fine evenings entertainment. Music and laughter were to reign as King and Queen.

I put away my corn popping equipment, gathered my wraps, left the deserted theater lobby, and walked through the lonely streets with the applause of a satisfied first night audience ringing in my ears.
